General Description

John Brown's House enjoys a secluded position quietly tucked away from the hustle and bustle of the town centre yet is steps away from the town's main shopping areas and all its amenities.

Haddington is the county town of East Lothian and as such has an excellent shopping centre, schooling for all ages and a wide range of leisure and recreational facilities. These include a modern swimming pool/leisure centre, 18 hole golf course and numerous sports and social clubs. The town is surrounded by typically beautiful East Lothian countryside and for those working in Edinburgh the journey by car is both fast and easy. The city bypass also provides ready access to the airport and motorway network.

John Brown's House dates back to the 1700's. It is a detached stone built house originally linked to the former church building to the rear, now converted into flats and known as John Brown Court. It offers interesting and well maintained living accommodation with a flexible layout. On the ground floor there is an entrance hall, cloakroom, large dining/kitchen and 2 bedrooms one of which is currently used as a dining room. The upstairs sitting room was formally used as a meeting room and there is also another bedroom and the bathroom. The property has been well maintained and modernised in recent years including the installation of full gas central heating using a combi boiler for greatest efficiency. A useful stone built store to the side. There is also a small area of private garden that is to the side and rear of the property.
